MICK LAZINSKI

Mick's show is refreshingly creative. A boy-next door style with a personable nature. Observational and accurate descriptions of everyday occurrences all will recognize. Mick juggles killer oneliners and on the money impressions along with stories about parenting, dating, marriage and the after life of a sixties hippie who dipped his toe into a suburban responsible façade, only to return to an opinionated watchdog babyboomer that makes him appealing to all audiences.

BRYAN MILLER

Bryan Miller was born into a family of morticians, providing him with both the basis for his offbeat sense of humor and his first audiences. His energetic stage presence and warped worldview help shine a light on the darker side of life. He works all over his adopted home state of Minnesota clubs, bars, shameless dives, and once on an ill fated river cruise and tours throughout the Midwest. He was a finalist in Acme's 2009 Funniest Person in the Twin Cities contest and is a writer for TV's Drinking with Ian.
